These friendly lines shall see
Let memory dwell on days gone by,
And sometimes think of me."

To Kate:

May future, with her kindest wishes,
Wreath laurels for thy brow,
May loving angel's guard and keep thee
Ever pure as thou art now.

May your life be one sweet dream
While on this earth you stay,
Hereafter may you dwell with Him
Who says "I am the way."

By thy own words I'd learn to live,
And if men show me thee take no heed,
And if men hate thee have no care,
Since thou thy song and do thy deed
Come thou thy work and pray thy prayer
And claim no crown they will not give
No bays they give thee for thy hair
For on the future goal they face,

And let thy feet be loosed to stray
And let thy feet be swift to rest,
And nowhere tarry by the way,
Until at last the end is met
And thou mayest look back from the place
And see thy long days journey done!

Doubt Thou the stars are fire:
Doubt That the sun doth move;
Doubt truth to be a liar:
But never doubt I love. (you)

W. W. H.

The oak tree fights me swept the ground,
But every year they grow
A little farther from the earth
And nearer to the blue.

So live that you each year may be,
As time flies swiftly by,
A little farther from the earth,
And nearer to the sky."

Faithfully yours,

Celeste E. Bush.

"Life is a volume,
From youth to old age,
Each year is a chapter,
Each day is a page.
May none be more charming
More womanly, true,
Than that-^{ful} husband noble
Sketched if early by you."

Miss. Kate,

For love can never veil from sight,
Its tenderness and truth;
If it be honest as the light,
That makes all plain forsooth.

" No stream from its source
Flows seaward, how lonely soever its course,
But what some land is gladden'd.

No star ever rose
And set without influence somewhere.

Who knows
What earth needs from earth's lowest creature?

No life
Can be pure in its purpose and strong in its strife

And all life not be purer and stronger thereby.
