Feb. 3rd 1902.

Miss Gilpah Tignoe is considered among our very worthy graduates. She is a painstaking, conscientious, progressive student and an alert, resourceful, and thoughtful teacher. Her work, as teacher, in our Training School was eminently satisfactory. She selected the subject matter for each lesson with good judgment, prepared it with due care, and presented it to her classes with rare tact and skill. I am convinced, too, that her influence over her pupils will be of the very best. I have no hesitancy in commending Miss Tignoe to the considerate attention of the educational public.

Yours very truly,

Linus W. Kline
