The Misunderstood Origins of the Cold War

Jennifer Melton
Longwood University

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.longwood.edu/spur

Part of the History Commons

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.longwood.edu/spur/5

This Poster is brought to you for free and open access by the Office of Student Research at Digital Commons @ Longwood University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Spring Presentation of Undergraduate Research by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Longwood University. For more information, please contact hamiltonma@longwood.edu, alwinehd@longwood.edu.
The origins of the Cold War stemmed from the position of competition between the United States and the Soviet Union that was forced into action after World War II ended which created the void of communication between the two superpowers. Without the excuse of alliances that World War II provided, the two countries moved into a period of a more pronounced ideological conflict. The reason for this was because ideologically they were at direct odds with one another. The difference in ideology and politics of both countries forced further separation and unwillingness to work together to resolve any issues. This difference in ideology imposed itself through the efforts of both countries attempting to gain more control from the other over weak European countries. Together economic disparities, cultural differences, and the fear of communism in the United States caused competition where both governments felt the need to stand up to each other because neither side could be viewed as the weaker side. Overall, miscommunication played a role in all of these separate ideas in that if they were all rooted in the misunderstandings between the United States and Soviet Union.

ABSTRACT

The origins of the Cold War stemmed from the position of competition between the United States and the Soviet Union that was forced into action after World War II ended which created the void of communication between the two superpowers. Without the excuse of alliances that World War II provided, the two countries moved into a period of a more pronounced ideological conflict. The reason for this was because ideologically they were at direct odds with one another. The difference in ideology and politics of both countries forced further separation and unwillingness to work together to resolve any issues. This difference in ideology imposed itself through the efforts of both countries attempting to gain more control from the other over weak European countries. Together economic disparities, cultural differences, and the fear of communism in the United States caused competition where both governments felt the need to stand up to each other because neither side could be viewed as the weaker side. Overall, miscommunication played a role in all of these separate ideas in that if they were all rooted in the misunderstandings between the United States and Soviet Union.

ECONOMICS

WWII SPENDING

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>UNION</th>
<th>$ BILLION</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>US</td>
<td>293</td>
<td>125.7</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

WWII DEATH TOLL

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>UNION</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>US</td>
<td>400,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>