Paper Snakes and Itty Bitty Writing Journals

Lizbeth J. Phillips
Wallace Middle School

Keela H. Smith
Marion Middle School

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.longwood.edu/sli

https://digitalcommons.longwood.edu/sli/2016/Thursday/16

This Event is brought to you for free and open access by the University Events and Conferences at Digital Commons @ Longwood University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Summer Literacy Institute by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Longwood University. For more information, please contact hinesstm@longwood.edu.
This make-and-take session is geared to providing students hands-on opportunities to create a quick project that demonstrates mastery. Keela and Liz teach writing, and they know that students need a break from writing prompt templates. Try two of their favorite engaging brain breaks!

Paper Snakes Project
Participants will make a snake out of colored paper, decorate it, and then choose to either write a haiku or about something from an unusual point of view. These activities get teachers and students excited about writing and sharing what they create!

Itty Bitty Writing Journals Project
Participants will make a very small writing journal and decorate the cardstock covers. With a few folds and snips with scissors, teachers and students will look forward to writing on the small spaces. Of course, everyone will delight in sharing how to use the journals in their classrooms!